Karat School Project

The Karat School Project (KSP) was founded in by Evelyne Keoman in Palo Alto, California. Evelyne was born and raised in Ivory Coast, West Africa. She was a little girl who was not given much chance at education and became a teen mom at the age of 16. From her earliest childhood, she understood first-hand what it meant to live in poverty, to go hungry and be unable to go to school.

Evelyne is on a mission to give back to her community and to make sure that children - particularly girls - get a chance at a quality education for a better life and future. She wants to ensure that children are not out on the streets working for meals instead of attending school and putting their lives at risk.
