One Heart Worldwide

Nepal has one of the highest rates of maternal and neo-natal mortality (women and newborns dying in childbirth) in the world. In many areas, women do not have access to skilled services or a safe facility in which to deliver. They risk their lives to give birth.

Because of this a Nepali woman dies in childbirth every eight hours. Every hour two Nepali newborns die, most before they are even one day old. Almost all of these deaths are preventable.

One Heart Worldwide (OHW) was founded on the belief that access to lifesaving healthcare is a human right. OHW upgrades birthing centers and health facilities to be fully equipped with the staff and equipment necessary to provide safe deliveries. OHW drives sustainable change from within the communities it serves by working with community stakeholders and the local governing agencies. Through this process, One Heart Worldwide is saving lives now and into the future.
