Before and After

It's hard to grasp how much impact TGUP's projects have on the villages and people where they are built. So, this newsletter is a simple montage of several typical projects, showing the "Before" and "After." If a picture is worth 1,000 words, this is surely worth many tens of thousands. Enjoy.

Classroom: La Pitilla, Nicaragua

The makeshift school of aluminum sheets couldn't fit all of the students and couldn't keep out water in the rain. Now, the village has a real classroom.

Before

After

Latrines: Mbuluyenji School, Zambia

Latrines are not glamorous, but without them there is constant sickness, because everyone is walking around in E.coli. Now, they are safe.

Before

After

Classroom: Ngenia School, Kenya

No lights. No desks. No blackboard. How could anybody learn? Now, the students have a beautiful, well-appointed classroom, and are learning!

Before

After

Drinking Water: Ivory Coast

Village women walked hours a day to bring water. A solar pump and 3/4 mile of plastic pipe gave scores of ladies back their lives, and children clean water.

Before

After

Classrooms: Manyesa, Malawi

The village had 1,200 children, but no classroom. They handmade 160,000 bricks. We made five classrooms from them. It's the best school in 50 miles.

Before

After

Kitchen: Kiahuko School, Kenya

The school feeds 487 students one meal a day: corn, beans, onions, and oil. They had a "three rock" stove to do it on. Now, they have a real kitchen.

Before

After

Classroom roof: Manikaji School, Indonesia

A typhoon blew the roof off the school. Thanks to TGUP donors, we had it replaced in six days. Good thing, too, because the rains were coming.

Before

After

Science Lab: Ngungu School, Kenya

Does anybody learn complex subjects from a tired blackboard and dog-eared textbooks? These students now have a world-class science lab, thanks to TGUP's Science Lab in a Box.

Water system: Bahundada, Nepal

Before, the ladies of Bahundada walked 1/2 a mile to scoop water from a puddle. A $700 dam pools the water so it can be piped to the village directly. No more walking. No scooping. No more muddy water.

Before

After

Classroom: La Quebradita School, Nicaragua

Forty-two students were crammed into that shipping container pretending to be a school. Now, they have a 20' x 26' real school. It will last 40 years.

Before

After

Playground: Olmoti School, Tanzania

The old swing sets couldn't cut it. Now, the 400 students have a real playground, with swings, slides, teeter-totters, and monkey bars.

Before

After

Classroom: Kanjuu School, Kenya

Do we even need to say anything about this one? Except, where would you rather your children went to school?

Before

After

All of TGUP's 313 projects in 25 countries have some of this "Before" and "After" character. It's why they are so impactful. We are completing a new project every four days, somewhere in the world.

Final Word

Making the world a better place need not be grandiose or expensive or difficult. It is as simple as providing a latrine, a classroom, a playground, a kitchen, a science lab, clean water, or another low-cost, small-scale, high-impact project for people who have nothing.

That is TGUP's model. It's working. If you want to help make the world a better place, it's as simple as this. Click here to see the projects we're now working to fund. And, join us by donating here.

TGUP has recently partnered with Boundless Foundation to build classrooms in Guatemala and Cameroon. We expect to do much more with them. They are hosting an auction of high-end designer jewelry between July 13 – 16. Please consider supporting this auction. It will help both Boundless and TGUP. To register, click here.
